A new generation of mountain resorts is making it easy to stay green

STORY BY LINDA HAYES

ENCANTADO Tesuque, New Mexico A member of Auberge Resorts, Encantado's contemporary adobe, stacked stone and steel design feels uniquely at home on the fringes of Santa Fe. A focus on sustainability, preservation and green design and materials is evident in 65 luxury casitas, a regionally inspired spa and lauded chef Charles Dale's locally sourced dishes at Terra Restaurant. 877-262-4666, www.encantadoresort.com

HOTEL TERRA Jackson, Wyoming Situated at the base of Jackson Hole Mountain Resort's aerial tram, this luxe LEED-certified hotel pays homage to its surroundings. Its 72 rooms feature a nature-inspired color palette, low-flow water fixtures, Zuma Airbaths, all-natural mattresses, and organic cotton sheets, towels and robes. Organic treatments are offered at Chill Spa. 307-739-4000, www.hotelterrajacksonhole.com

THE SKY LODGE, Park City, Utah LEED-certified construction standards, wind-generated power, a computer-controlled climate system and a property-wide recycling program take place behind the scenes at The Sky, located in historic Old Town. Its 33 loft-style residential suites pamper guests with custom kitchens, wood floors and Italian linens. The Japanese soaking tubs at Amatsu Spa are pure bliss. 888-876-2525, www.theskylodge.com
